Fourth Great Reception
at the New

Fashion Shop

in Thirty-fourth Street
(Opposite the Waldorf-Astoria)

FIRST a success, then a fad, and then a triumph—the way all BIG things get to be BIG in the metropolis—is the day-to-day story being woven around this splendid new enterprise by New York's discriminating devotees of fashion, who also worship at the shrine of economy.

Lady Duff-Gordon's Opinion of Yesterday's Success:

September 21, 1915.

Dear Mr. Bedell:

I do not understand how any woman of limited income and unlimited good taste can keep away from your new Thirty-fourth street shop.

What a field there is for authentic, well selected fashion at moderate prices! Again your new place was crowded and I marvelled at the good judgment shown by the average purchaser—at the complete understanding of the new season's styles.

Many of your models are delightfully charming creations which I should regard as worthy of myself. You enable your thousands of customers to enjoy these smart things, which have been approved and adopted by leaders in the world of fashion, at most reasonable prices.

Sincerely yours,
Lucie Christiana Duff-Gordon

Fourth Reception Day To-morrow

The series of Opening Reception Days continues through the week—to-day, to-morrow, and up until Saturday night. Again to-morrow there are new special features in each of the great Fashion Salons—gowns and frocks of every description, suits just from the master designers of modes, Autumn coats, evening wraps, millinery with the true Parisian touch and blouses which would seem to exhaust the possibilities. There are literally new arrivals hourly—not only to show, but offered at prices which seem difficult for you to understand, until you realize the scope of the Bedell organization, and the fixity of its purpose.

Popularity of "No Alteration Charge"

The smartest woman in the world does not scorn legitimate economy. New as the policy is in this fashionable neighborhood, the Bedell plan of making no extra charge for fitting and alterations is already commanding the respect and commendation which it deserves. It frequently means five to ten dollars saving on a single purchase. An able corps of fitters and tailors, many of them taken from positions in the highest-priced Fifth Avenue establishments, is in charge of this work.
